

RUSTIC AMERICAN HOME DESIGN

BUCKTAIL

Copyright 2012 MossCreek
www.MossCreek.net
800.737.2166

Bucktail jigs are frequently described as the world's most adaptable lures because they work under a wide variety of conditions and can be used to catch almost any species of fish.

Likewise, the Bucktail by MossCreek was originally designed for a small lots in the Smoky Mountains. The wide profile and shallow depth of this design is the ideal response to a building site that slopes quickly from front to back. The main level features a Master Bedroom and generous entertaining space. This creates a floor plan that can be enjoyed by owners of all ages and physical conditions.

An Outdoor Living area with large timber framing and a fireplace allows for extended use in early spring and late fall and is screened from l-fresco dining and cooking, free from the insects. Upper level bedrooms are identical for so all guests feel treated equally. An upper level loft perches handsomely above the Great Room and looks out across the Outdoor Living space to capture the scenic view.

BUCKTAIL

2,331 total square feet

